which, by the way, is the finest band in the State, outside of Cincinnati—and were conducted to the Court-bouse yard, where arms were stacked.

The arrival created a sensation, and brought a large and enthusiastic crowd of people to the depot. Although but organized a few months since, they are discouraged, as they most surely will become a grand success in every point. At 4 o'clock dress parade was performed to a large audience, and was gone through with in a manner which reflects much credit upon Captain Stuckey, the much credit upon Captain Stuckey, the afficient and clover Lieutenants, J. Captain Palmer, whose death occurred on Wednesday last, has been engaged as narine agent and adjuster for upwards if fitteen years, for most of the Cincinnati insurance companies. He was fornerly a captain on the Northern lakes, and in that capacity acquired an experience in marine matters, both as an adjuster and practical boatman, that was of great value in his vocation. He was the inventor of a valuable marine pump, which has been adopted on the lakes, and one of which was put on the wrecking-boat "Underwriter," built here in 1864 under his supervision. The same pump, we believe, is now on the wrecking-boat T. F. Eckert, and has rendered good service to underwriters on both hulls and carcoes on the Western wa.

"I have thoroughly investigated the question of the legal claim of the city upon the street railroad companies for the non-payment of their car licenses. I find upon such investigation that two of the companies are not, by ordinance, required to pay any car license, viz.: the Sedamsville road and its extension, Route Mo.

"In regard to Route No. 10, the facts appear to be as follows:

"They have but recently commenced running, and no bill has yet been presented. The rate of car license for Route No. 10 is $15 each for small cars and $25 each for large cars.

"Route No S have, through its managers, expressed a will unpress to pay the sum due the city, in which it has been in arrear, when that amount has been definitely computed and ascertained. Upon this point further instruction would seem to be demanded from the Council, which instruction will be promptly carried out. "There are three lines connecting the city,

Mr. Goodin came to Cincinnati from New Or-teans in 1:24 with his brother, together with whom he embarked in the pork business, under the firm name of J. &S. fi. Goodin. This for many years was one of our largest packing es-tablishments, and was among the first, if not the very first to ship to the New Orleans market.

the very first to ship to the New Orleans market.

Mr. Goodin originally settled in what is now known as Delhi, ne, together with his orotherin-law, Peter Zinn, having lau out the town, and the one adjoining, known as Home City.

He had reached the ripe ago of seventy-four, and, though not activally engaged in business, still retained much of his energy and all of his influence, which, in political circles especially, was not smal.

The Times, Painted Post, N. Y., tells The Times, Painted Post, N. Y., tells of a man near there who was recently bitten by a rattlesnake and recovered. He stepped on the snake and it struck him on the ankle, the hings going through his boot; hearing the rattle apprised him of his danger. He placed some moistened tobacco on the wound, corded his leg just below the knee so as to sten the circulation, and hurried to stop the circulation, and hurried home, which was about a mile distant. nome, which was about a mile distant. On arriving home his ankle had swolfen considerably. He commenced killing chickens, cutting them open and applying the warm flesh to the wound. As fast as the flesh became colored with the virus he applied a fresh piece, and kept it up until it retained its natural color. This is worth amountain. This is worth remembering, as it is a well-authenticated fact.

A conductor on the Windsor & Aunapelis railroad in Nova Scotta has sent a of an apple-free overwanging "Basil's blacksmith forge," mentioned in "Evan-geline," with a silver head, appropriately inscribed.

Resutrful Women.

Besstrai Womes.

Writing of a performance at an amphitheater in Verona, a correspondent says; Every one of the spectators at Verona would be recognized in Boston as an Italian, and there were among them eyes as pale-blue as opsi, and hair as light as the most bleached Saxon locks. Still, the Italian character was plainly marked in such inces; there was a childlike twinkle about the eye, a careless, improvident lock that marks the common people almost universally, and every movement or the features betrayed the impulsiveness of the Italian nature. Comclier faces than those of the Verona girls are rarely seen. Piles of powdered heir adorn the bead, and a black veil, dainting adjusted, gives grace to every pose; nor do they seem to plentifully besprinkle the rich skin of their laces with a coarse white powder, which heightens by courtast raher than subdana by an a coarse white powder, which heightens by contrast rather than subdues by sup-perposition the rich, glowing, yellow complexion.
